INTRODUCTION

This publication summary is one of a set of documents which constitute the official reporting of the NKA/KRU project on control room design, operator training and human reliability. While each of the technical reports has its own annotated bibliography, this collection lists all reports, working papers, etc. in chronological order by country for each of the three major areas of work. A natural overlap between these can lead to some duplication of entries.

Copies of most of the documents can be obtained by contacting the following:
